

Immerse me

Immerse me in starlight, fireflies and moonshine
Melt me in thick lava or blue glacier ice
Feed me fly agarics, let me dance amongst the fae
Ignite me in the sunrise, bright enough to burn my eyes

Lay me deep in the moss, let the roots entwine me
Whisper me my last rites, louder than a scream
Freeze me into stone, let me crumble off the clifftops
Float me to the cirrus zone, reality not a dream

Inject me with nostalgia, angel cake and a party rings
Plug me into the stereo so the song shreds through my veins
Plunge me to the deepest depths, until it feels good not to breathe
Immerse me immerse me before nothing else remains
